State Registration 2013

Registration for States is now open! This is a very exciting time of year, but it also hectic. We are here to make this process as easy as possible for you. This year, we have opened registration a month earlier to try and avoid some of the challenges that have come up in years past. That said, please register as soon as you can in case you run into problems along the way.

We have created a registration packet for you and your students. This packet is available on our website. Click on the registration link in the column on the right for more information.

At its simplest, the registration process is as follows:

1. Teachers register themselves

2. Teachers complete a basic registration for their students
3. Students finish their registration in a screen teachers cannot see
4. Students must log in with their parents, who will provide permission to participate

5. Once all students are registered the red "x" next to their names will disappear and teachers can pay the competition fees or parents can pay the fees when they provide permission.

This year, for the first time, shirts will be sold as part of registration. Check out our Shirts page on the website to see what they look like—you can only buy them during registration.

Registration closes on MARCH 13, so be sure to complete local competitions by March 9.

Other Competitions

The Lowell Milken Center Discovery Award, which celebrates its inaugural year in 2012, is a unique opportunity for students to use creative talents to research primary sources and develop outstanding projects featuring unsung heroes who now serve as models. Click Here for more information.

We Need Judges

NHDNH is looking for history professors, social studies teachers, museum employees, and other experts to be judges at States! Please contact us if you are interested or know someone!
